Washington

New Jersey

"In the beautiful Pohatcong Valley"

As can be seen above, Washington is centrally located in the industrial belt of the state of New Jersey. Transportation and shipping are speedy, due to the perfect highways and traffic regulations governing shipping routes.

Besides the above, resort areas are within a few hours drive of the Borough; salt water swimming and fishing and fresh water swimming and fishing are "in our own back yard."

Welcome to Washington

This review and publication of Washington facts was made possible through the cooperative assistance of all industrial, professional, businessmen, churches, and lodges of the community and surrounding areas whose names and/or photographs appear herein. And to them, the Chamber of Commerce expresses full and sincere appreciation for having performed a most useful and lasting service to the Borough which will long be remembered, and for which grateful acknowledgement is here made.

History

Washington, New Jersey, situated in the center of Warren County, was originally named Mansfield Wood House after a log cabin built in 1741. Incorporated February 20, 1868, from the central densely populated part of Washington Township, its great stimulus to growth came when the town was established as a railroad junction.

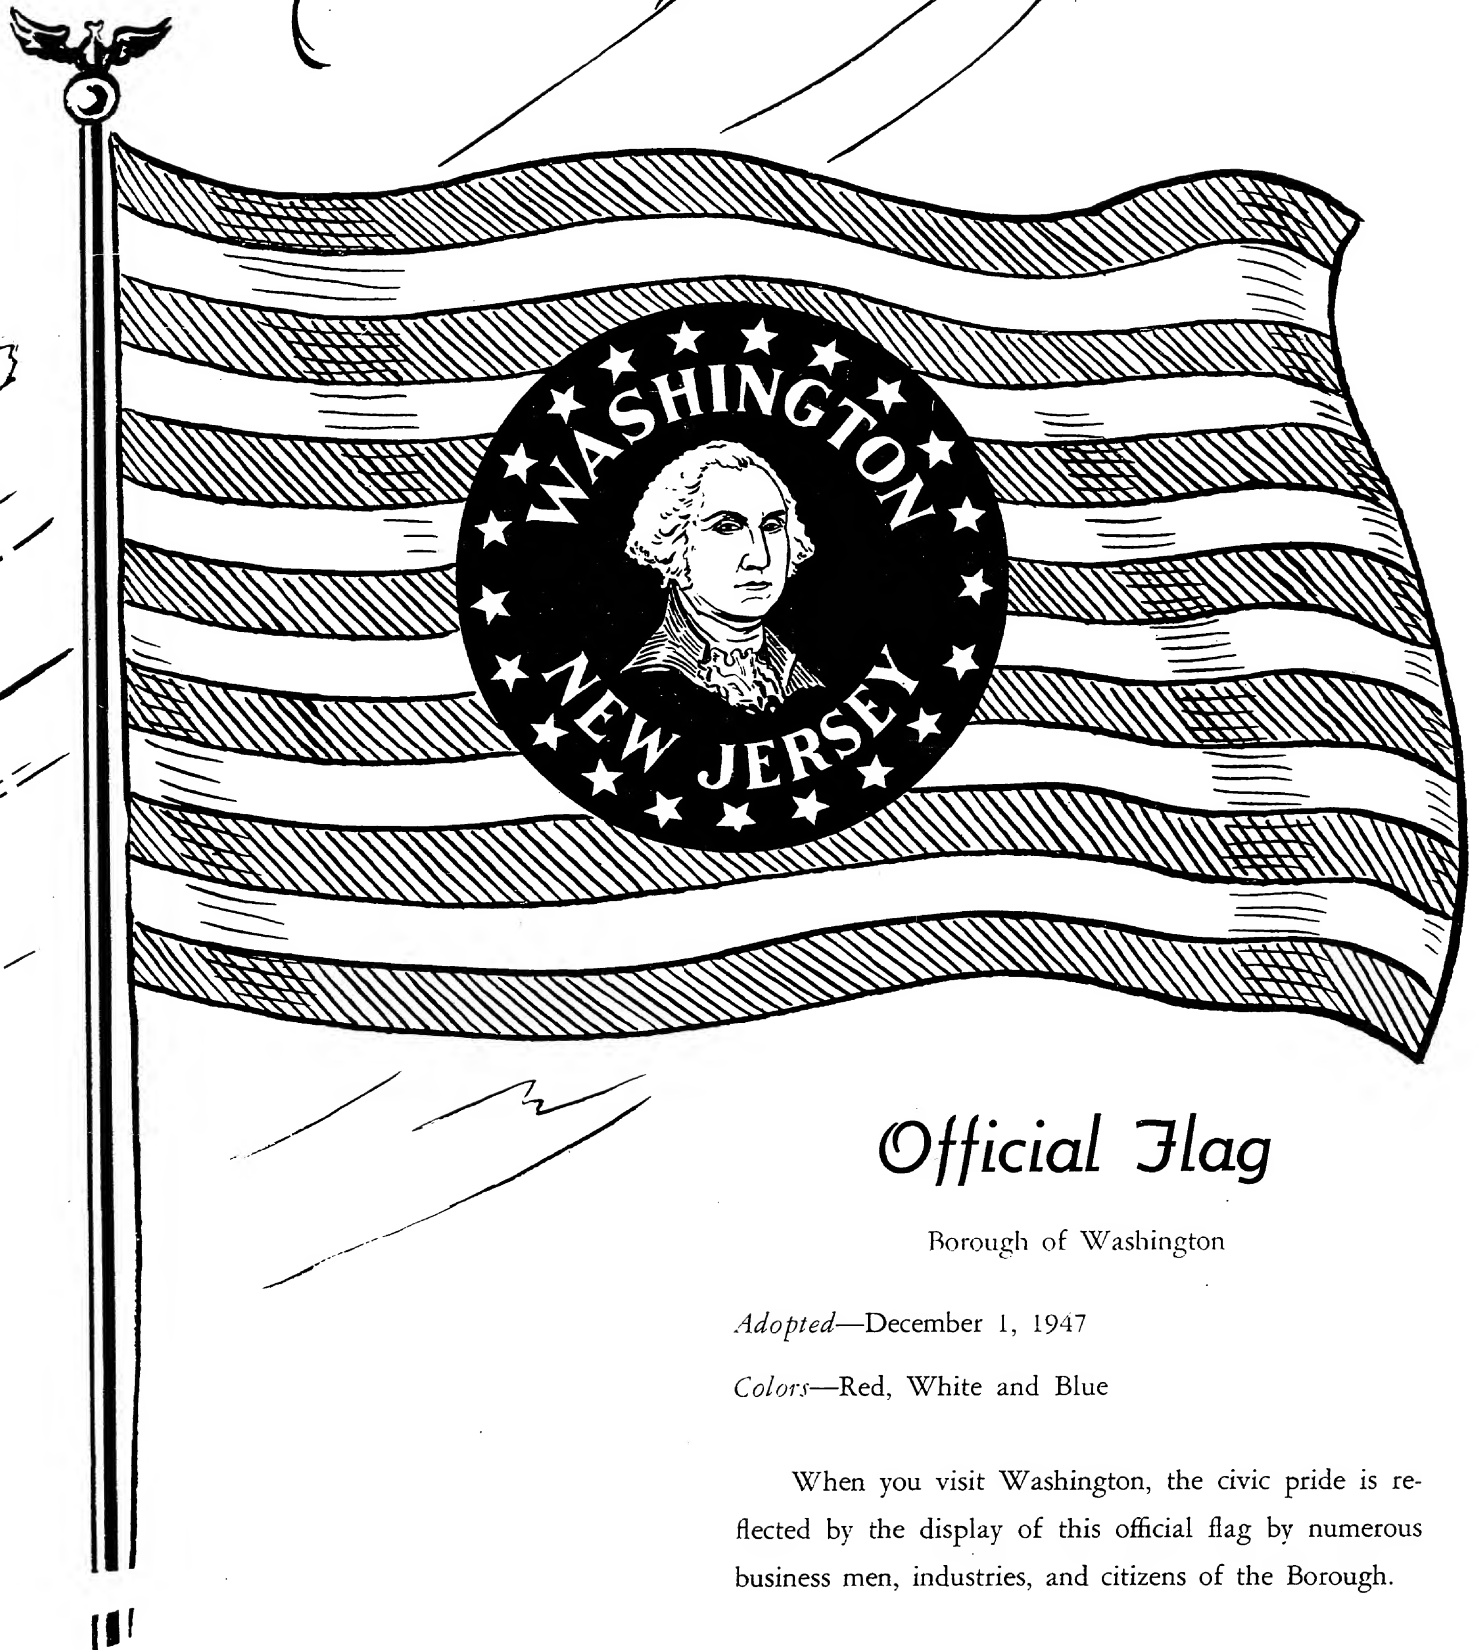

Colonel William McCullough, who built a brick tavern in 1811, is considered the founder of Washington, which is situated in the beautiful Pohatcong Valley with its picturesque Blue Mountains on the North, the Musconetcong Range on the South, and its flashing streams, seems designed for advantages as a place of residence. It is a busy workshop for industry and a natural playground in the wooded hills of unsurpassed beauty. Its beautiful homes on well shaded streets, its well-known stores and its recreation facilities make it the trading center of Warren County and with a population of well over five thousand people, Washington can rightfully be classed as a suburban metropolis.

Washington is located sixty-six miles from both New York City and Philadelphia. The topography is rolling, with gently swelling hills that are characteristic of Northern New Jersey. The general elevation is 510 feet above sea level and the climate is healthful and pleasant and contributes to the efficiency of labor and education.

The average annual precipitation is around fifty-two inches, and, as the distribution of this moisture is remarkably even throughout the twelve months of the year, the region is notable for its greenness even during late autumn. All these things are important to you in choosing a place to live and work; so, we have put all the facts we think you will want to know in this booklet, together with many pictures of our life and its activities. It tells why the people who live in Washington like our Borough, and, why we think you will like it too!!

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Washington, New Jersey

Official Flag

Borough of Washington

Adopted—December 1, 1947

Colors—Red, White and Blue

When you visit Washington, the civic pride is reflected by the display of this official flag by numerous business men, industries, and citizens of the Borough.

Facilities

EDUCATION—Growing steadily year after year, reaching an all-time high enrollment of 1,000 students, Washington can well be proud of its schools.

In addition to the regular subjects offered in the elementary school, music, art and physical education have become traditional. The high school supports a curricula of five courses as well as a full sports program, an activity program of twenty clubs, and, musical organizations which have gained national prominence.

WATER—The best quality of water is furnished the Borough by the Washington Water Company. Adequate storage is provided by two reservoirs which have a combined capacity of 8,000,000 gallons.

Normal water consumption for a twenty-four hour period is 500,000 gallons.

The supply originates from springs at Roaring Rock in the mountains a few miles from the Borough. Annual mean water temperature is 55 degrees.

A new well has just been finished to further protect the community from any seasonable drought and also to meet the demands due to expansion and new industries.

GAS—Gas is supplied to the residents of the Borough by the City Gas Company of Phillipsburg, New Jersey. The gas is pumped from the Easton, Pennsylvania plant of the Allentown-Bethlehem Gas Company to a storage tank located in the Borough; the gas is then fed from this tank into the mains which supply the homes and industries of the Borough.

TELEPHONE—The Bell Telephone Company Building in Washington is the hub of Washington's communication system. Built in 1929, when the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company took possession of the Lehigh Telephone and Telegraph Company, this building houses both the business and central offices.

The telephones in use in Washington in 1929 were approximately 840. Since then the number has increased to over 2000.

Rural development has been rapid, almost tripling since 1940.

Total daily average calls handled number 8500.

POWER—New Jersey Power & Light Company manufactures electricity for Washington and vicinity. Its present capacity is 55,000 KVA. Within the next two years it is expected that this capacity will be more than doubled. Electric current was first supplied to the homes of Washington in 1895.

Due to the rapid increase in the use of electricity during the past 15 years, this company has been able to cut the unit cost approximately one-half.

GARBAGE DISPOSAL—Washington maintains a modern garbage collection system. Municipal trucks collect garbage throughout the borough weekly as a public service.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL—A sewage disposal plant handles liquid and semi-liquid domestic waste. No industrial waste with acid or dye contents may be introduced into the system without preliminary treatment.

The present system is now being enlarged to take care of growth and expansion.

POSTAL SERVICE—The United States Post Office in Washington, New Jersey, is rated a first class post office. There are six incoming and five outgoing mails daily. Approximately 7500 patrons are served by 4 city routes, 2 rural routes, and 1 star route. Over 100 miles of the surrounding territory are served by the rural and star routes. City carriers make 2 deliveries daily.

Police and Fire Department

The town is well policed. So far as major offenses are concerned, crime is practically non-existent. Minor offenses are handled expediently and economically by local magistrates and by Warren County Courts.

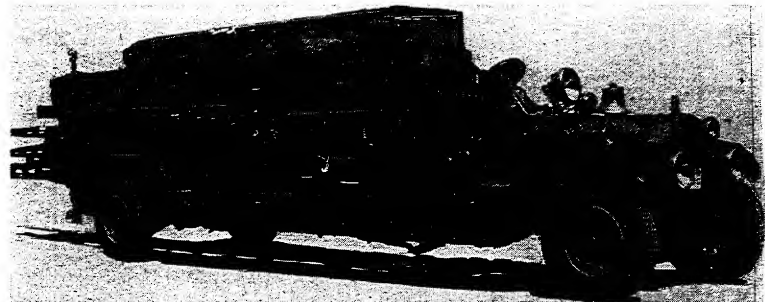

The force consists of a Chief, Assistant Chief, and three patrolmen. There is twenty-four hour patrolling of Washington.

The New Jersey State Police maintain a barracks at Washington with a force of eleven men. They patrol an area of approximately 290 square miles. This is also a twenty-four hour service.

A Fire Department of forty firemen, a Fire Chief, and an Assistant Fire Chief is maintained strictly on a voluntary basis.

Transportation

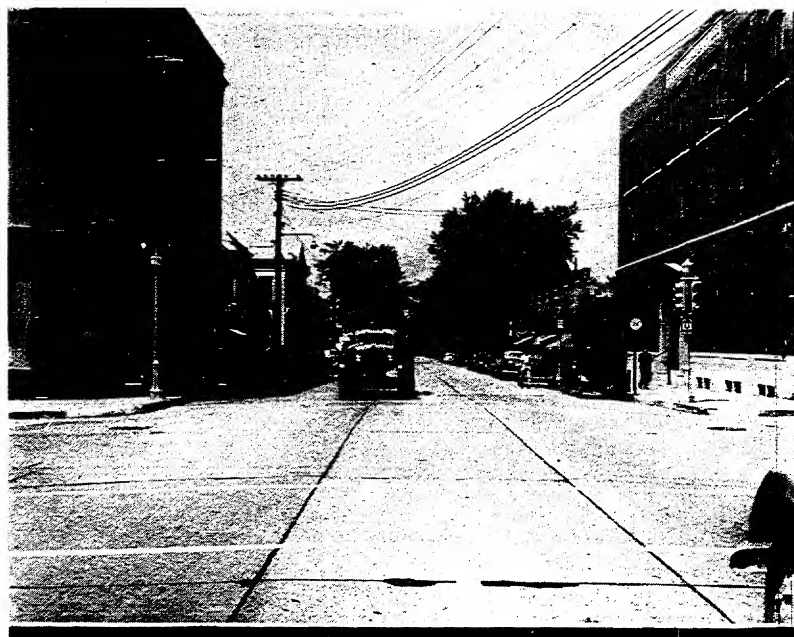

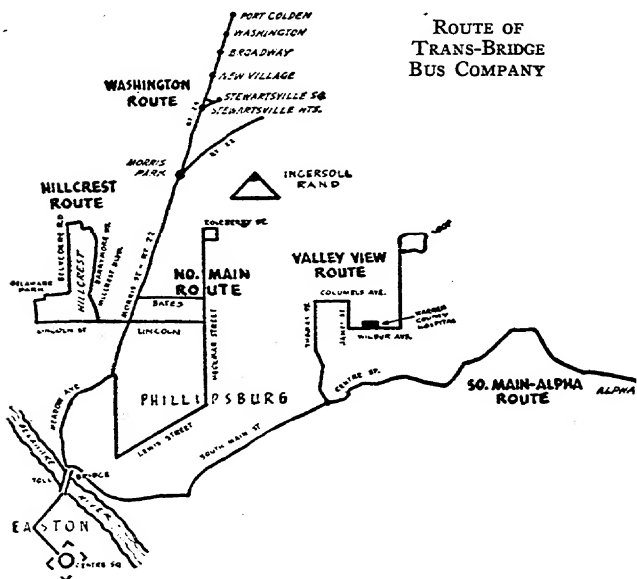

Passenger and freight service is operated from Washington by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. This service extends to New York City, and, at Dover, New Jersey, connects with the main line for all points West. Freight service also connects with the Pennsylvania, Central Railroad of New Jersey, and Lehigh Valley Railroad at Easton, Pennsylvania assuring business and industry fast service throughout the country.

Bus service is scheduled and operated to New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, and Allentown by the Royal Blue Coach Company. Greyhound service is available at the Buttzville Post. The Martz Lines to Newark and New York have a scheduled stop in Washington.

The Central Bus Terminal in Easton, Pennsylvania extends passenger service to all points. The Trans-Bridge Bus Co. maintains hourly schedule from Washington, N. J., to Easton, Pa.

Clubs, Lodges & Theaters

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars both maintain their own homes for ex-service-men of the community.

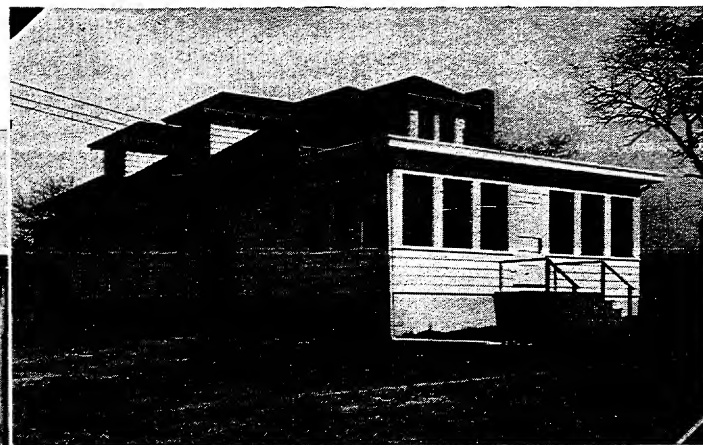

Many and varied activities are offered by the organizations pictured on this page. Included in the usual activities are jointly sponsored programs presented yearly by all clubs and lodges.

Besides those pictured, and mentioned in the first paragraph, there is also Kiwanis International, Rotary International, and Junior and Senior Women's Clubs, whose programs are known far and wide.

Of the two theaters owned and operated by the St. Cloud Amusement Corporation, one, The Washington Theater, is illustrated.

STAR PUBLICATIONS

Newspapers

Known far and wide as America's Largest Country Weekly Newspaper is THE WASHINGTON STAR, printed and published in a large building of its own on Church Street. No daily newspaper is published in Northwest New Jersey. The STAR alone serves the homes in this area with completeness in local news coverage, advertising volume, and over-all circulation.

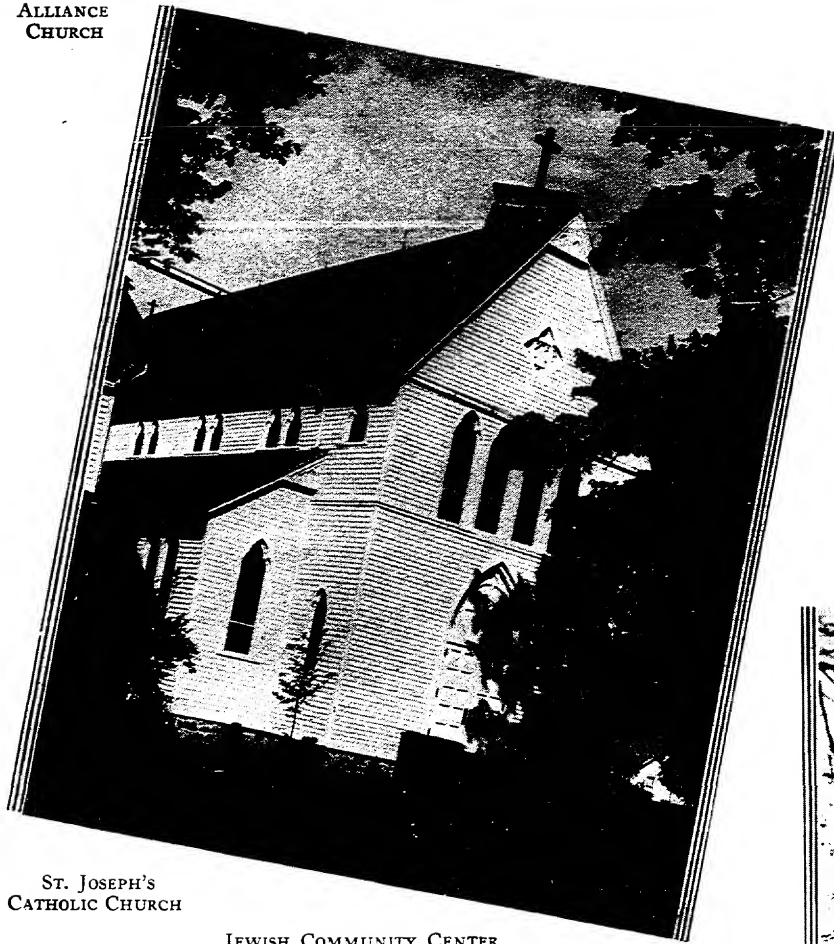

The Stryker Press has the largest and most modern printing plant in Northwest New Jersey. Together with THE WASHINGTON STAR it represents the third largest industry in Washington. The Stryker Press also prints other newspapers, magazines, and commercial work of all kinds.

Churches

The Churches of Washington extend a cordial welcome to every resident and visitor in this community. Nine Churches here present opportunities for worship, fellowship, and service to people of a wide range of religious faith and interest. Seven of these are of Protestant denominations, one is Catholic, and one is of the Hebrew faith.

Much is being done to foster a spirit of good fellowship and cooperation among the Churches of our community through the Washington Council of Churches. The Council is constantly studying the religious needs of the community and devising means by which they can be met in a cooperative way. It is the conviction of those who are active in the Council's work that it is not enough for Washington to have good Churches, it is extremely important that the Churches promote the highest possible degree of tolerance and understanding among people of every religious persuasion.

Hunting & Fishing

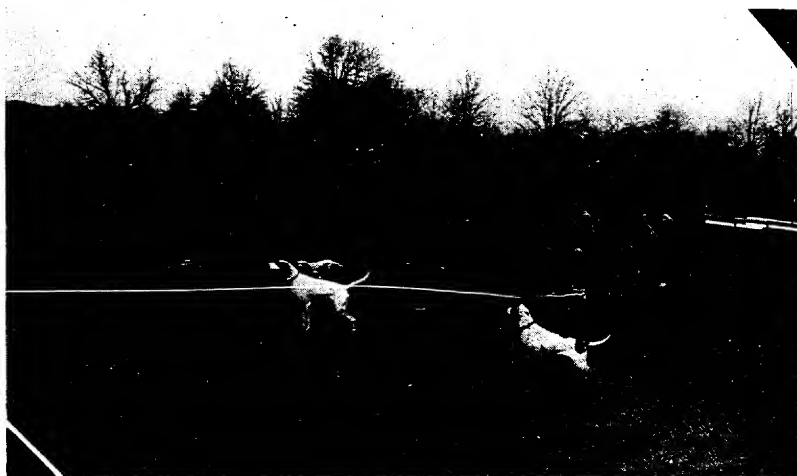

Warren County, with its many streams and lakes, is a fisherman's paradise. The streams and lakes are annually replenished by the New Jersey Fish Hatchery, located a few miles from Washington.

Hunting offers the lover of this sport a vast variety of game. Deer, pheasant, quail, rabbits, and smaller game are prevalent in the area. The finest pheasant farm of the New Jersey Game Commission is also only a few miles from the Borough.

The Warren County Rod and Gun Club, a very active organization, spends many hours during the winter building shelters and feeding the wild game.

Recreation

Washington's well-kept Borough Park and playgrounds are situated in one of the finest locations in the town.

The swimming pool is one of the best and there is also a wading pool for kiddies. Both are enjoyed by all during the hot summer months.

The park contains swings, tennis courts, sand pits, and a large ball field. The illustration shows the fine baseball field and substantial grandstand.

Many families spend delightful time under the beautiful large maple trees, ideal for picnics.

Industries

Pictured on these two pages are the industries that have made Washington the center of business attraction in the East.

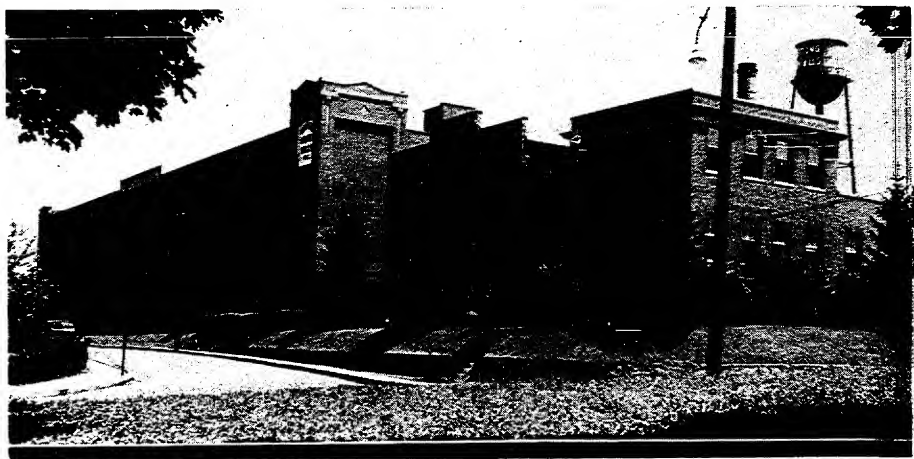

These locally managed organizations are fully diversified in scope, national in distribution, and known the world over.

Check the captions and see if you don't recognize some of the titles or trade names.

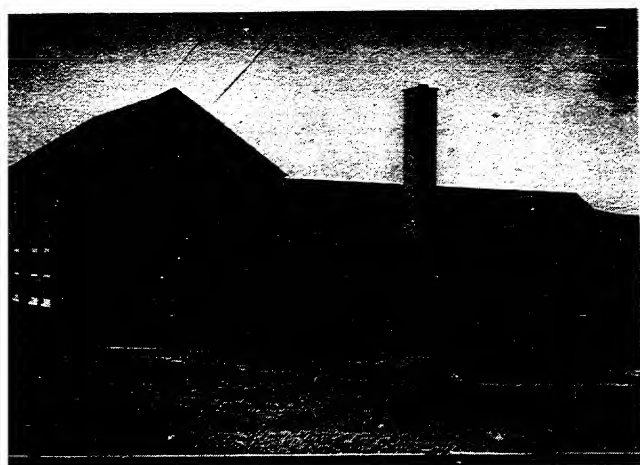

These businessmen have learned the value of dealing in the surrounding areas! There is much can be had within four hours of Washington instead of the usual five day shipping wait for material and service from distant sources. This, of course, is due to the central location of the Borough to the largest supply points in the East.

Views of Washington

As can be seen, the Borough lies in the "Beautiful Pohatcong Valley," the theme outlined on the front cover.

WASHINGTON AVENUE (EAST)

Two views show tree-lined streets, set with many native forest trees, offering the preferred cool summer shade for Washington residents.

The winding road is Route 30, one of New Jersey's well-known cement turnpikes. Along this route, and one other passing through the Borough, travel all major trucking concerns in the East.

Pictured to the right is Broad Street. This street is also shaded by native, forest trees. The street views of the Borough leave you with the impression of well paved, well cleaned, thoroughfares.

Housing

Washington housing developments—Sunset Terrace to the North, and Hillcrest Manor to the South—are of the latest type construction with the added features of being able to “add to” in the future. Both offer scenic views of the surrounding countryside and still are only ten minutes walk to the center of the Borough.

Sunset Terrace has now completed thirty-five homes and more are being erected. Under present conditions, there is room for seventy more homes in the development.

Hillcrest Manor has completed ten homes and also continues to build in this development.

Both these developments have become the “Showplaces” of the Borough—spacious lawns, shrubbery, special terracing features—making both developments an asset to the community.

Hotels, Restaurants & Tourist Cabins

Two hotels and a tourist cabin colony furnish accommodations for transient as well as for permanent guests.

From the illustrations of taverns, shuffleboard is the most popular pastime. Banquet facilities are readily available, as well as entertainment for social gatherings. In the lower, right side of the page will be found a photo of the "Glee Club," very well-known in this and surrounding states.
